Supporting Leaders. Responsive to Educators.
Pursuing Educational Justice.

Pivot Learning refers to both Pivot Learning and our subsidiary, the Consortium on Reaching Excellence in Education (CORE).

The Focus of Our Work

Curriculum and Instruction

We facilitate the adoption and implementation of high-quality, standards-aligned instructional materials.

Prevention and Intervention

We collaborate with educators to implement targeted, research-based interventions, and to improve special education systems.

Secondary School Transformation

We support the implementation of college and career pathways and school redesign.

Research and Partnerships

Across all of our services and programs, we engage in research and strategic partnerships to expand awareness about the most critical issues in education and the impact of our work in pursuing educational justice.

Our mission is to partner with educators to design and implement solutions to their greatest challenges, together pursuing greater educational justice.

How We Work

Pivot Learning is a technical assistance nonprofit based in Oakland, CA. In order to achieve real improvement in student outcomes, we leverage a user-centered design model to collaborate with educators.

Our Organizational Values

We are committed to improving teaching and learning in alignment with our organizational values: educational justice; sustainable change; nimble, scalable solutions; and a focus on results.

Our Partners

Pivot Learning works collaboratively with partners in every sector – from districts and public agencies to curriculum publishers, nonprofits, and community-based organizations. We are especially grateful to our diverse group of funders.

Our History

Pivot Learning was founded more than 20 years ago and developed the “cycle of inquiry,” which is still used today by educators as a way to assess student needs and improve outcomes.

Now with nearly 100 educational experts on our team, Pivot Learning continues to partner with district and school leaders to support sustainable systems change and to deliver high quality professional learning.
