Work with Pivot Learning to Re-envision Instruction Through Equitable Systems

As you prepare for the 2021-22 school year, Pivot Learning and UnboundEd can help you plan for equitable interventions to help all students recover learning. COVID-19 has highlighted and deepened existing inequities in access to high-quality learning and instruction. Districts have a unique opportunity to not only respond to the needs resulting from disruptions over the past year, but to re-envision how their systems support educational equity. Pivot Learning can help you reverse longstanding gaps and provide a new path forward.

Our free Equity Reset Toolkit provides the steps and resources to build a data-driven, equitable learning recovery plan that re-envision what access to grade-level instruction looks like for every student. The toolkit will help you determine the district systems that support student growth and achievement in the fall as you return to full time in-person learning. We share your commitment to educational justice, and can partner with your district to implement the actions outlined in the toolkit. This will enable you to establish new systems for equitable ELA and math instruction.

Partner with Us to Create Your Plan

Want assistance completing the steps in our Equity Reset Toolkit? We will work alongside district leadership to facilitate data collection, guide data analysis, and make customized recommendations to help district teams develop an equitable learning recovery plan based on your stakeholders' unique insights.

We will:

- Guide the 1 month of equitable learning recovery research and analysis outlined in the Equity Reset Toolkit
- Lead weekly meetings to keep your team on track
- Deliver actionable, customized recommendations for building an equitable learning recovery plan for ELA and math to support student and teacher needs, including:
 - Instruction and intervention materials
 - Professional learning
 - Supports for priority students
 - District systems
- Recurring learning sessions on equitable instruction and high-quality assessments for learning

Timing & Stakeholders

- 4-week contract, including 1 week of planning & preparation, 3 weeks of direct support
- The district will commit a cross-functional team of 5-10 people for the duration of the contract, with the full team joining meetings and engaging in work between the meetings
